

MAI P. TRAN

MANAGER, MARKETING & COMMUNICATIONS

BIOGRAPHY

Mai P. Tran is the marketing & communications manager at Imaginable Futures. She oversees website content, social media and email communications. Mai also supports the team's strategic communications and public relations efforts.

Previously, Mai was the communications manager at ECMC Foundation, a national postsecondary education funder based in Los Angeles. In this role, she oversaw the organization's external communications, public relations and branding efforts; and provided communications support for its executive leadership. Prior, Mai served as a public affairs associate at the Council of State Governments Justice Center, where she developed content for the national division of the organization, and provided research and constituent relations support.

Mai is committed to working in the mission-driven space. During her undergraduate and graduate years, she interned at nonprofit organizations focused on children's rights, civil rights and criminal/juvenile justice reform, and in local, state and federal government offices.

Mai received a Master of Public Policy from Brown University and a Bachelor of Arts in Communications and Political Science from the University of California, Berkeley.

Mai lives in the Bay Area with her husband, Oliver and their dog Roady. She enjoys volunteering at a local family shelter, hiking new trails, practicing soul-centering activities and exploring new places.
