

VINICE DAVIS

VENTURE PARTNER

BIOGRAPHY

Vinice Davis is a venture partner at Imaginable Futures, where she co-leads our U.S. two-generational approach to learning by focusing on postsecondary success of adult learners with children.

Prior to joining Imaginable Futures, Vinice served as the chief operating officer of Purpose Built Schools Atlanta, a partnership with Atlanta Public Schools established to turn around several of the city's lowest performing schools. She was responsible for developing the infrastructure for finance and accounting, human resources, facilities, IT and operations for the organization.

In previous roles, Vinice was vice president of improvement services for AdvancED where she led the systematic evaluation of multiple low-performing schools throughout the US and designed the principal capacity assessment. At KIPP Atlanta, she served as the managing director of operations and led the implementation of talent management and school operations for more than five years. Vinice supported charter school openings at the New York City Charter Center. In addition, she was a human capital consultant with Ernst & Young. Vinice currently serves on the boards of All Our Kin and TNTP Inc.

Vinice received a Master of Business Administration from the Yale School of Management and a Bachelor of Business Administration from Emory University. She was a Career Advancement Program Fellow with Management Leadership for Tomorrow.
